A: After running the command notepad ~/.document.settings/Microsoft\ Word\ 2000\ Settings\ AddIns\ logm-Common\ Cache.ini from the question. I found this:

[IOM_Common_Cache_CacheService] CanHandleAFullTextTextChange = 1
CanHandleAFullTextTextChangeUI = 1 IsManagedService = true

Commenting out the first two lines (and appending the following 3 lines) fixed the problem.

[IOM_Common_Cache_CacheService] CanHandleAFullTextTextChange = 1
CanHandleAFullTextTextChangeUI = 1 IsManagedService = true

Subsequent attempts failed: Restarting my PC again Rebooting the PC Removing the file from the registry Removing the registry key reinstalling Microsoft Office I had not tried rebooting my PC since doing the install of Microsoft Office, and it turns out it was needed.

Q: C++/Boost : std::vector operations in header file I'm working on a C++ game engine, and I have a vector defined in my header file : typedef std::vector EntityList; Later on, I define a function which returns the number of entities in a given List, using a loop like this : EntityList::size_type sizeOfGame(const EntityList &list) { size_type size = 0; for(EntityList::iterator it = list.begin(); it!= list.end(); ++it) ++size; return size; } This works fine, but I find my code less readable in my header file. Does anyone have a better idea? Do you see any way to make this better?

A: One way to do this is to use overloading: template T size_of(const EntityList &list) { // Same logic as in your loop } int size_of(const EntityList &list) { size_t size =

ItÂ .LONDON (Reuters) - British Prime Minister Theresa May's new Brexit deal is badly damaged and she must tell parliament either to accept the terms, or she will run a "people's vote", Foreign Minister Jeremy Hunt said on Wednesday. Britain's Prime Minister, Theresa May, attends the Ninth Annual BWIMember's Day Conference at the Landmark London, November 2, 2018. REUTERS/Peter Nicholls Sterling plummeted on Wednesday after the European Union's Brexit negotiator Michel Barnier cast doubt over the EU's willingness to offer May a deal to leave the bloc next March, although he stopped short of ruling out an extension to the two-year Brexit deadline beyond the current end of the month. An initial EU plan to leave on March 29, 2019, collapsed earlier this month after May managed to win the support of her cabinet, but several senior members, including Foreign Secretary Boris Johnson and Brexit Secretary David Davis, remain opposed to the divorce deal she has agreed with the European Union. On Tuesday, May told parliament her agreement was "the best possible deal, the only deal or no deal", but it has been repeatedly rejected by lawmakers and many of her ministers. "Brexit is well and truly down the rabbit hole. This is very difficult, it is not popular and it is not working," Hunt told BBC television. "It is time for the British people to have a say on this deal. That is why I believe we should have a people's vote on this deal." Speaking hours before the start of a European Union summit in Brussels,

EU Chief Brexit negotiator Barnier said the EU's demand that May's proposed withdrawal deal be accepted by the House of Commons was not a "take it or leave it" offer. Barnier also told France's Europe 1 radio that he regretted agreeing to May's request for an extension to the Brexit deadline to May 22, but said in a worst-case scenario the EU would grant an additional few months. A spokesman for Barnier said he had not ruled out an extension. But he dismissed suggestions that May had offered to ask the EU for
